Unconscious (or implicit) biases are social stereotypes about certain groups of people that are formed outside of our own conscious awareness. Every person who has ever interacted with or seen another human being has unconscious biases that shape the way they view and think about other groups of people. At the individual level, these biases can negatively impact work relationships and performance. At the societal level, they can lead to an unfair and hostile environment for certain groups. Although we all have unconscious biases, it doesn't mean we can't control and change them. It's up to each of us to take responsibility for our own biases, as they can have harmful, real-world outcomes.

ZLDR-1218 Dealing With Difficult People0.4 CEUs

Ever wonder how an encounter with a person went so bad so quickly and asked yourself, "What did I do?" Chances are that you were simply dealing with a difficult person. Most times we can avoid or minimize our interactions with difficult people, but sometimes they are unavoidable. The best way to handle difficult people is to be aware and prepared for their behaviors and to develop strategies for dealing with them.

Customer service has the power to form a customer's entire perception of an organization. One bad experience can result in losing not only that customer, but future customers as well. Studies show that a satisfied customer may tell two to three people about their experience, while dissatisfied customers will tell between eight and 20. However, even an unhappy customer will become loyal if you are fast, fair and friendly in resolving their complaint.

The world is changing at an unprecedented pace. Every day, leaders are making countless decisions and facing problems they've never encountered before. What worked yesterday can change overnight. The speed is relentless, the stakes are high, but the rewards are great for those who can lead a team to consistently achieve extraordinary results. So how can leaders stay ahead of the curve and differentiate themselves and their teams when so much is changing so quickly? MEET THE 4 ESSENTIAL ROLES OF LEADERSHIP Even in the most turbulent times, there are four roles leaders play that are highly predictive of success. We call them essential, because as leaders consciously lead themselves and their teams in alignment with these roles, they lay the foundation for effective leadership. The 4 Essential Roles are: Inspire Trust: Be the credible leader others choose to follow – one with both character and competence. Create Vision: Clearly define where your team is going and how they will get there. Execute Strategy: Consistently achieve results with and through others using disciplined processes. Coach Potential: Unleash the ability of each person on your team to improve performance, solve problems and grow their careers.

ZLDR-8951 Conflict Resolution
0.3 CEUs

Conflict in the workplace is a given; though we may try to avoid it, we cannot escape it. The ability to recognize conflict, understand the nature or cause of the conflict and resolve conflict effectively will benefit individuals, teams and the organization as a whole. Developing the skills to handle conflict in the workplace is essential; not only will it increase morale and productivity at work, but will be of value in all areas of life.

ZLDR-8952 Adaptability & Change Enablement0.3 CEUs

An organization's ability to effectively drive change depends on its ability to engage its most valuable resource — its people — in the process.

This course provides the skills and resources leaders need to accelerate change implementation and create an agile work environment in which people are more open to change. Change happens all around us — at home, in our communities and at work. The only constant of change is that it is unavoidable. Anxiety over the unknown, changes in roles and responsibilities and/or processes can result in unhappy, unproductive and stressed-out employees. Embracing change is easier when we know what the changes are, why they are happening, the benefits they will yield and how to overcome barriers to change.

ZLDR-8953 Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, & Belonging0.3 CEUs

Unconscious (or implicit) biases are social stereotypes about certain groups of people that are formed outside of our own conscious awareness. Every person who has ever interacted with or seen another human being has unconscious biases that shape the way they view and think about other groups of people. At the individual level, these biases can negatively impact work relationships and performance. At the societal level, they can lead to an unfair and hostile environment for certain groups. Although we all have unconscious biases, it doesn't mean we can't control and change them. It's up to each of us to take responsibility for our own biases, as they can have harmful, real-world outcomes.
